

Chapter 1: Weblinks

www.indonesia.travel/

Visit the official website of the Ministry Of Culture And Tourism, Republic Of Indonesia. It may inspire you with its latest news and photos of Indonesia. This is the first place to check for your class research projects and for your next holiday. Highlights include a video gallery, which is definitely worth a look.

Play lots of different geography games and test your knowledge about Indonesia or learn about other countries. There is also an amazing iPhone application you can download. If you don't have an iPhone, don't worry — there are plenty of fun games, puzzles and quizzes for all tastes and levels.

We like this website's value statement: 'It might be worth speaking a bit of Bahasa ...'. What do you think? Of course it's worth it! The website features a list of common expressions in Bahasa and has bits and pieces of information (including accommodation details, dates of fairs and festivals and loads of interesting facts) which could be useful for your research and to provide an insight into what is happening in Indonesia at the time of your search.

www.studyindonesian.com/lessons/alphabet/

This website is perfect for practising your Bahasa Indonesian alphabet. It provides audio help so you can listen to the sounds of the letters and fine tune your accent. There is also a game that gives examples of average Indonesian words and their English translation — great for some extra study.

Languages online is recommended by many secondary school teachers. The website has many fun and interactive games that provides extra practise in a range of languages. There are 35 different topics in the Bahasa Indonesian section including numbers, time, animals, age and name. Each topic has approximately ten online games plus some print out activities.
